

TIFFANY M. NEWMUIS MTHM '08

TIFFANY M. NEWMUIS is an innovative strategist and programming manager who has influenced some of Philadelphia's largest events and organizations.

Currently, she is working with Comcast as the corporation's senior manager of town hall and campus programming. In her role, she manages programming for a complex, multi-use, high-production space that serves the entire headquarters population, as well as outside audiences.

Prior to joining the Comcast team, Newmuis worked on one of the most notable events in Philadelphia of our time—the 2016 Democratic National Convention. She served as deputy chief of staff and director of diversity and community engagement for the 2016 Host Committee. During her tenure, she worked tirelessly to manage the strategy, process and people involved all while implementing and directing all diversity initiatives.

Newmuis thrives in an ever-changing environment, which is why throughout her career several positions were created specifically for her. Her professional journey has afforded her experience at Thomas Jefferson University Hospitals, the Pennsylvania Convention Center and the Glassboro Business District.

She earned her bachelor's degree at Hood College and her master's degree at the School of Sport, Tourism and Hospitality Management, where she regularly volunteers her time, serving as a guest speaker and offering students career advice.

School of Sport, Tourism and Hospitality Management